Frontline Medical Communications Launches Two Gastroenterology Publications in Partnership with AGA

~ The New Gastroenterologist™ and Highlights of the AGA Tech Summit ~

Parsippany, NJ — May 28, 2015 – The Society Partners group of Frontline Medical Communications recently released two new publications in cooperation with the American Gastroenterological Association, the premier professional organization for gastroenterologists.

The New Gastroenterologist™ is a quarterly supplement to GI & Hepatology News® — the official newspaper of the AGA — published by Frontline since 2007. In his April editorial, publication Editor Bryson W. Katona, MD, PhD, states, “The New Gastroenterologist is the first publication of its kind within the field of gastroenterology and presents an exciting opportunity to concentrate content into a single place that specifically addresses the topics and issues that are common to all young career gastroenterologists.” The New Gastroenterologist was released in April in print, a mobile app and an online digital edition that can be accessed at www.GIHepNews.com. The remaining issues of 2015 will appear in July, October and December.

Highlights of the AGA Tech Summit is a print and digital compilation of the sessions held at the 2015 AGA Tech Summit this past March in San Francisco. Offered by the AGA Center for GI Innovation and Technology, each year “the Summit brings together physicians, medical device companies, regulatory groups, and venture capitalists to identify unmet needs in gastroenterology and highlight promising new technologies,” according to Michael A. Kochman, MD, AGAF, Chair, AGA Center for GI Innovation and Technology. Frontline covered the sixth annual AGA Tech Summit with a series of e-newsletters from the conference and an online digital edition is available at www.GIHepNews.com.
